In her garden, Alice spots a White Rabbit wearing a waistcoat and carrying a pocket watch, hurrying along. Driven by curiosity, she follows him into a burrow and tumbles down a deep shaft, beginning a magical and unforgettable journey.

After following the Rabbit, Alice falls down the shaft and wakes up in Wonderland. She learns that, to return home, she must find the mysterious Wizard of the City of Mirrors, and she seeks help from the creatures she encounters.

Near a forest of clocks, she hears a metallic clanking sound. She discovers the Tin Man, who is rusted and lacks a heart. After she helps him by applying some oil, he decides to join her in the search for the Wizard, hoping to ask for a heart.

As they walk, a bouncy yet timid Lion emerges from the woods, startling the group. Alice learns that he is a coward. He decides to accompany them to ask the Wizard for courage—and to find protection from the Queen of Hearts.

The Cheshire Cat appears, warning them that the path to the Wizard is dangerous, as it leads through the territory of the Queen of Hearts. He mentions that the Queen is dangerous and offers an important piece of advice:

"The Queen of Hearts' greatest fear will always be me."

Alice is left deep in thought.

In the royal garden, the Queen of Hearts—furious at the presence of these strangers—demands a game of cards, declaring that anyone who loses will hear the command: "Off with their heads!" Alice is dealt three cards and remembers the advice. She plays the card featuring the cat. Upon seeing it, the Queen becomes completely disoriented. "Time to run, everyone!"

The trio reaches the City of Mirrors and finds the Wizard. He is happy to learn that Alice has defeated the queen and decides to grant her three wishes. Alice helps her two friends, and finally, she asks to return home.

Alice says an emotional goodbye to her friends, who now possess a heart and courage. The Wizard sends her back, and she wakes up in her bed, wondering whether it was all real or just a dream. In any case, she is very happy to have reached the end of this story safe and sound.
